

Delta Engineering – Warehouse worker / Back-up warehouse supervisor

Warehouse worker / Back-up warehouse supervisor

As an experienced Warehouse worker, your responsibilities will include:

- Handling the receipt of incoming goods.
- Managing the shipment of spare parts and machines. You ensure that our (large) machines are packaged correctly and safely to guarantee secure transportation.
- Ensuring accurate order picking for our internal work orders.
- Supporting the logistics chain through efficient location management within our supply process.
- Managing day-to-day stock control.
- Acting as a point of contact for the Head Warehouse Supervisor when carrying out more complex projects, drawing on your experience.

In the absence of the Head Warehouse Supervisor, you will also take over part of their responsibilities:

- Monitoring email communications and the inbox, as well as handling telephone contacts with our other sites.
- Receiving, checking and administratively processing incoming goods.
- Taking care of the administrative handling of outgoing shipments.
- Managing day-to-day operations and task allocation within the team.

Your talents

- You have excellent administrative skills and pay great attention to detail.
- You work independently, take initiative and have a proactive attitude.
- You have strong communication skills and a good command of English, both spoken and written.
- You have previous experience in a coordinating role.
- You have experience with warehouse management software (ERP systems) and are proficient in MS Office.
- You are flexible and have a hands-on mentality.
- A valid forklift and/or overhead crane operator certificate is an advantage.

Our offer

- A secure, varied job within a young, growing company and an enthusiastic team. You will work for a financially sound company with a leading reputation and a clear vision for the future.
- You can count on ongoing training.
- Your remuneration will be in line with your profile and experience.
